

Dice Writing

Want to write an amazing story but can't think where to start? Then here's a fun way to get your creative ideas flowing!

Simply cut out the story starter below and paste it into your book, then roll the dice and get writing! Don't forget to add lots of detail and use plenty of describing words. When you need a new idea, just roll again and work that new idea into your story—easy!

	A door creaks open and then suddenly slams shut
	The sound of singing seems to waft through the house
	A strange shadow floats at the top of the stairs
	The room suddenly becomes icy cold
	A piano starts to play with no one playing it
	The dining table is set with a full banquet that seems to be fresh and ready to eat

The Haunted House

I walk past the old, empty Bradley house every day on my way home from school. It's empty, the lawns are overgrown and some of the shutters are hanging loose, but I'm used to it. So what if the neighbourhood kids think it's haunted? It's just a house.

So when the game of truth or dare at Simon's party ended with Simon daring me to go into the house, tonight, in the dark, I wasn't too worried. I knew it was an opportunity to show them all once and for all that they were silly to be worrying about such things as ghosts.

I grabbed my backpack and threw in a torch, a water bottle and a screwdriver just in case the door was stuck and headed out with the other kids following me. When we got to the gate they all stopped, refusing to even step into the yard, so I headed down the path and into the front door alone.
